

SUMMER OUTING PLANS COMPLETE

New Hampshire Board of Trade Goes to Isles of Shoals June 30.

Mayor George H. Cox who is president of the New Hampshire Board of Trade and H. H. Metcalf of Concord secretary of the board have perfected their arrangements for the annual summer outing of the board and the following circular has been issued in regard to the days doing.

The annual summer outing of the New Hampshire Board of Trade will be held this year on Tuesday, June 30 the objective point, being the Isles of Shoals.

On arrival at Portsmouth members and ladies (the latter, always being invited to participate in the summer outings) will be met by representatives of the Portsmouth Board and shown about the city until the departure of the steamer Juliette which will leave Appledore Wharf at the foot of Deep street for the Isles at 11 a. m. making the circuit of the islands and landing at Star Island in time for dinner at the Oceanic at one o'clock.

This will be one of the delicious shore dinners for which the hotel is famous, and which people from the interior especially enjoy.

There will be no extended speaking program following the dinner, the general desire being to give the time mainly to sight seeing and general enjoyment, but words of greeting will be offered by President Fred M. She of the Portsmouth Board, which will be responded to by the President of the state board, followed by a short address by ex-mayor Wallace Hackett upon "Portsmouth in the Early Days."

The steamer will leave Star Island on the return at 3.30 p. m. arriving at Portsmouth in season for the afternoon train.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION

New York Has Hole Stove in Her
Port Side Early this Morning--
Best of Discipline Prevails

(Special to The Herald)
New York, June 12.—At 3.25 this morning a thick fog for the steamer or Preharia struck the steamer New York near Ambrose Channel and tore a hole about fifty feet in length on the port bow, nothing below the water line however.

Those aboard the New York knew that a ship was in close proximity several minutes previous to the accident and her engines had been stopped for ten minutes. Captain Roberts was on the bridge at the time the Preharia loomed out of the fog, and rang the bell for full steam astern.

The engineer reversed his engine with a quick jerk and the New York fairly jumped backwards as the Preharia crashed into the New York, scraping along her port side for 100 feet.

Admirable discipline was maintained by the officers and crew.
At the time, all of the passengers, 265 in number were asleep, but they soon hurried to the decks, but there was no panic however.

The Preharia awaited nearly a half hour until assured that there was no need of assistance. The New York carried a crew of 143.

CUTTER LANDS THE JOB

Will Succeed Musgrove as State Auditor.

The governor and council on Friday appointed Guy H. Cutter of Jaffrey, a prominent young Democrat, to the position of state auditor. The successor Frank A. Musgrove of Hanover, who recently resigned and will serve out his unexpired term.

Mr. Cutter has served in the legislature several times, and was a delegate to the Baltimore national convention. He has also been secretary of the Democratic state committee.

The governor and council also re-appointed General Jason E. Talles of Nashua as a member of the Forestry Commission for a term of three years. General Talles was first appointed to this position, December 23, 1901 and has been a member of the commission since that time.

The Holland meat and fish market at the corner of Bow and Penhallow streets was sold at public auction this Saturday morning by Butler & Marshall. The sale attracted a crowd of onlookers as well as prospective purchasers.

The bidding started at $5000 and was lively, the principal bidders being Max Goodman, Joseph Sacco of this city, and John S. Young of York Beach. After $7500 was reached the bidding narrowed down to Sacco and Goodman, the former's bid of $8,025 being the highest.

BOARD OF ENGINEERS

THAW SCORES OPPOSING SIDE

Says He Is Willing to Favor
Jerome and Trust to Court.

Harry K. Thaw issued a statement yesterday in which he denounced the action of New York attorneys who have attempted to thwart his intention of going to Philadelphia. His statement follows in full:

"I am reluctant to comment upon the extraordinary advertising indulged in by the New York lawyers yesterday. We realize the humiliation when gentlemen representing the New York attorney general's office give newspaper interviews about a matter on the eve of its presentation before the United States supreme court, instead of exercising self control and keeping silent.

"My lawyers and I were not so indiscreet, and the publicity was started entirely by the other side.
"It was not only improper for them to rush into print but what they said was inaccurate. We were willing to let them down easy so were willing to accept the proposal. I heard of it from one of their lawyers and requested one of mine to inform Mr. Jerome we would agree not to take suit at present, but be satisfied with this.

Governor Stone was dubious of its expediency for the supreme court's rule 31, paragraph 3, distinctly provides pending an appeal from the final decision of any court, or judge discharging the prisoner, he shall be enlarged from recognizance with surety for appearance to answer the judgment of the appellate court except where for special reasons sureties ought not to be required.

Consequently I should have been jailed or released without bail without further delay, for attorney generals against us are not more important than attorney generals in other extradition habeas corpus cases, and I am no more important than any one else charged with a conspiracy involving court would not break its own rules on account of any of us so we are favoring Mr. Jerome in this.

Governor Stone is inclined to think we should have asked for our rights at once, but I am willing to let the other side down easy and accept this agreement for the summer."

FRIENDS HELP HIM CELEBRATE

Invade the Home of George E.
Colson and Make Merry.

One of the happiest gatherings which has taken place for some time was that which occurred on Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Colson of 230 Broad street, the occasion being the fifth anniversary of Mr. Colson's birth, when many friends and neighbors came to help him celebrate the joyous event.

The home was beautifully decorated. A large bouquet of pink and white plums formed the centerpiece of the dining table, while pink and white streamers were caught at the chandelier and extended to each corner, artistically festooned around the sides. But flowers were also used in abundance for adornment in other rooms of the house.

A most bountiful repast was served, consisting of rolls, olives, lobster salad, fancy wafers, assorted cake, barbequed ice cream, coffee and cigars. A beautiful birthday cake, the gift of a dear friend, also graced the dining table, bearing the inscription "1864-1914," carrying out the color scheme of pink and white. Many tributes of esteem were bestowed upon Mr. Colson for which he most fittingly responded.

After the lunch the company adjourned to the parlors where card and general conversation were enjoyed until the wee small hours, when the guests took their departure after wishing Mr. Colson many more such happy occasions.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gilkey, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. William Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Tillon, Mr. and Mrs. George Colson, Mr. Harry Colson.

DIED IN ROXBURY.

Mrs. Grace May Winn, wife of Harry E. Winn, passed away on Thursday in Roxbury, Mass., after a short illness, aged 25 years. Mr. and Mrs. Winn were former residents of Portsmouth, where a large circle of friends and acquaintances learned with extreme sorrow the news of her death. The funeral was held today from her late residence, 12 Peach street, with services at St. Philip's church on Harrison avenue.

Conductor Frank H. Moore is in charge of the special train which runs between Dover and Exeter today.

DELEGATES SIGN FIRST PROTOCOL

Plank in Peace Plan is Protocolized
After Three Weeks Discussion--
Huerta Must Release Office

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 12.—Delegates from the United States and the Huerta government today formally affixed their signatures in the presence of the South American mediating representatives to the first protocol of the series through which it is hoped to restore peace in Mexico. The agreement reached yesterday in relation to the manner in transferring the executive power from the hands of Huerta to the new provisional government stood the acid test of reduction to writing. It provided that:

A government is to be constituted in Mexico of a character to be later provided, which shall be recognized by the United States on date to be fixed and which from that day forward shall exercise public functions until there shall be inaugurated a constitutional president.

This plank in the peace plan was protocolized after more than three weeks of discussion, in the last three days of which so serious a disagreement had arisen that the succession of the entire mediation program was threatened. The brief protocol was significant of two things:

It makes no mention of President Huerta as provisional president as stated in the Associated Press dispatches last night, it omits the method of transfer which the Mexican delegates suggested and to which the U. S. strenuously objected on the ground that its retention would be tantamount to recognition of the existing regime.

The Mexican delegates on the other hand while abandoning the constitutional form of succession as a part of the protocol are satisfied because it does not specifically deny General Huerta's right to name his substitutes for provisional president if the latter refuses to accept designation from him. It is not considered probable that the new provisional president, since he is most likely to be a Constitutionalist, would take the executive power directly from General Huerta, but in tonight leave in authority before the day arrives for the mediation made government to take office.

The American delegates consider the method of transfer a closed incident. All the parties are now concentrating on the second part of the peace plan, which will form another protocol. It relates to the name of the provisional president and possibly will include his cabinet of four. Names have not yet been suggested but the conference will be devoted entirely to the discussion of individuals.

Though the protocol is composed of comparative few words, it is the embodiment of that for which the U. S. has been striving for more than a year—the elimination of Huerta. When his delegates today signed a protocol formally agreeing that the transfer and authority shall take place on a date to be fixed there was no mention of General Huerta's retirement, but the identification of the written document was not just on the mediation colony generally.

While the Constitutionalist were not parties to today's protocol, there is nothing in it to which they are admitted to the conferences they may still attach the signatures to it.

The question is of Constitutional representation, however, is still an open one.

The mediators say they will not officially admit the Carranza delegates unless they agree to declare an armistice beforehand. It is not doubted that the American delegates may try to secure a hearing for the Constitutionalist and that some way may be found for them to participate in the peace parleys after they arrive.

The whole day was given over to the drafting of the first protocol. The discharge of a cargo of ammunition at Tampico today from the steamer Andilla without restraint from the United States did not please the Mexican delegates. They expressed approval, however, of the order issued by President Wilson to the department of commerce which imposed the embargo on exportations of arms to Mexico by sea just as it had been enforced on land by the treasury and war departments across the border.

The fact that neither side will get arms while mediation is in progress is regarded by many as likely to bring

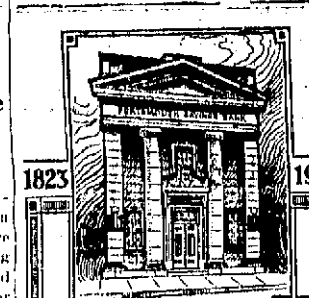

GIRL DIES OF INTENSE HEAT

Miss Ida Card of Dover Point
Succumbs at Dover
Hospital.

The first fatality from the intense heat in this section was recorded yesterday when Miss Ida Card, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Card of Dover Point, died at the county hospital after having been violently ill for several hours as a result of the weather conditions. The temperature was several degrees above the figures reached for several years. The young lady became ill Thursday afternoon and was taken to police headquarters after assistance had been solicited. She was examined by Dr. Talman and Dr. Carleton, Friday morning and pronounced ill, and they were preparing the necessary papers to have her removed to Concord when Chief Clark suggested that the appearance of the lady did not warrant her removal to that city until her physical condition improved.

At his suggestion she was taken to the county hospital, where after hours of suffering she died at 2 o'clock. The young lady had been a prominent resident of Dover for several years and leaves a large acquaintance to mourn her loss. The body will be removed to her home from where the funeral will be held at a later date.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Emerson of Pittsfield, Pa., and party are guests at Hotel Rockingham on their tour through the White Mountains.

SPECIAL CARS FOR ELKS.

Portsmouth Members Will Attend the Manchester Celebration.

Owing to the fact that the Boston and Maine railroad are unable to handle any more special trains for the Flag Day celebration the Portsmouth Lodge of Elks were made to secure a train from this city on Monday next to Manchester. However, they will have good accommodations in two cars for their exclusive use that will be attached to the special passenger train leaving Portsmouth at 7 o'clock Monday morning. Every member that can possibly go is expected to take advantage of the cut rate and the opportunity to show their patriotism on this occasion.

ONE THING LACKING.

Flag Staff and Flag Are Needed at Portsmouth's Fine Playground.

Portsmouth has a splendid playground and the same is enjoyed by a great many persons of all ages. There however is one thing that is lacking and that is a suitable flag staff and flag. Old Glory should float over Portsmouth's playground and steps should be taken in this direction. Small contributions from our citizens would soon bring about the desired object. The Herald will do its share and somebody should start the ball rolling.

A NEW METHOD OF TOUCH.

A woman who resides in a neighboring city has been working a novel scheme in this city the past week to secure money from our business men. She makes the claim that she can find her pocket book and states that she is a personal friend of some person who is well known to the business man approached. After the preliminary tale of woe is related comes the request for a small loan. A number of our business and professional men have been taken in by the smooth talking female.

CHANGE OF TIME

The summer schedule on the Boston and Maine railroad will take effect on Monday, June 22, when numerous and important changes will take place. New timetables will be in the hands of ticket agents, Friday, June 19.

CANDIDATES MAY FILE AFTER 4TH

Campaigning by Petition Will Be Popular Innovation
This Fall.

Beginning next month candidates for offices will begin to enroll their names on the primary lists and it is expected that campaigning by petition will be a popular innovation. This is a new system of nomination procedure which is the most important innovation made in the primary law.

Another innovation will be the triple-headed primary. Republican, Democratic and Progressive. Heretofore the primary has been a double-barreled affair with only the old parties participating. The effect of these two changes is a matter of study by those who are planning to do active work this summer in the field of politics.

A man may become a candidate for a state office nomination by the payment of a fee or the filing of a petition. Up until this year he could only enter by the fee system; now he has his choice.

Candidates may be filed after Friday, July 3. As a matter of fact, no candidate will probably be filed until after the fourth of July. This will allow about seven weeks for a campaign for the primary which will take place on the first of September.

To become a candidate, a man must make a declaration in writing that he is a voter of the Republican, Democratic or Progressive party, that he lives in the district he seeks to be elected from and that he will not withdraw after he is nominated and will assume the duties of his office if he is elected.

The nominations to be voted for on the primary ballot are those for governor, senator, congressman, councilor, moderator, supervisors of the clerkships, ward clerk and delegates to the state convention. Candidates for governor, senator, congressman, councilor, state senators and county officers are filed with the secretary of state and candidates for the other offices with the city clerk.

To become a candidate on petition, a man must get his supporters to make out petitions. These petitions so forth that the signer belongs to the same party as the candidate and that he believes the candidate especially qualified to fill the office. A petitioner can back only one candidate for the same office. Each petition has to be sworn to before a justice of the peace or notary public.

The entrance scale for all the offices is given below. After the name of the office is the fee for becoming a candidate, and then the number of petitions required, the candidate to take his choice of the two:

Office	Fee	No. of Petitions
Governor	$100	200
Senator	50	200
Congressman	50	100
Councilor	25	50
State Senator	10	15
County Officer	5	20
Representative	2	5
Ward Officer	1	5

In the original rating of offices on a fee basis, the office of state senator was regarded as higher than a county officer, and the fee was twice as much. But under the new law, it takes more petitioners to place the name of a candidate for a county officer on the ballot than it does a candidate for senator.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF NINETEEN HUNDRED FOURTEEN.

We, the Class of Nineteen Hundred Fourteen of the Portsmouth High School, of the City of Portsmouth, in the County of Rockingham and the State of New Hampshire, being of sound mind and memory, do make, publish and declare this our last will and testament in manner following, that is to say:

First, we do give and bequeath to the Class of Nineteen Hundred Fifteen the honor of occupying Room 4 and that dignity of bearing coupled with the scintillating brilliancy and remarkable progress which has always characterized us as a class. In all fields of endeavor, charging them to strive at any cost for that standard of moral, physical and intellectual perfection which we have attained.

Madeline Paul leaves her inability to make her eyes behave to Hope Akerman and Ethel Leach. This particular brand of rosy-brown eyes have been very effective in the last one hundred having left a son named Howard.

Shirley Simpson leaves her ability for dancing the "Shrimp waltz" to Sherman Newton, also his array of striking and fantastic underclothes. They tell not; neither do they speak. Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

Martin Newton leaves her shoulders which have borne the burdens of the class for ten, these many years, to Elnice Kenney together with an inexhaustible fountain of optimism and adorable smiles, which will, if used generously, help many a downcast and dejected heart.

Lena Shoberg bequeaths her extensive wardrobe with its infinite variety to Lois Seybold with two stipulations: only that Lois wear a different dress every day of the year, and that she have them starched as stiff as the expression she assumes when anyone has the impudence to contradict her.

Eldith Rand bequeaths her large and artistically arranged pompadour to Jennie Hoy, providing she forewears the use of curling tongs, marcel waves and all the rest of this world's vanities for Jennie, take these prophetic words from the lips of Eldith. "They are but the mimes art to lead your tiny feet astray!"

Leon Roberts generously bequeaths all his goods and chattels, with the exception of his barbarous haircut, to Mabel Young. Mabel we don't know positively what "chattels" are, even though we did look them up in agent's fashion book but if they are what we think they are, don't throw them away because they are going to be "the" thing for ladies wear next fall. The haircut in all its glory he leaves to William Southworth and Fred Holland. To these we extend our sincere sympathy.

Joseph Harvey, the famous "hot dog" fiend, bequeaths his capacity for same to "Fat" Campbell, providing we will reserve this internal space for the bonnie frankfurter and not for "Mellen's Pond," on which "Fat" is known to have thrived up to this time. We think his digestive apparatus is sufficiently matured to risk feeding him on solids for a while!

Harold Littlefield leaves his innocent and infantile expression of countenance which is but a fair and deserving reward to those who have been so generous in their support of the American flag. It is a privilege to be able to supply a limited number of these beautiful flags to our readers at such a small cost. All you need do is to clip six (6) of the above coupons consecutively numbered and present them at The Herald office with fifty-nine (59) cents in cash and the flag is yours. Ten cents extra for mailing & not called for.

Olga Meyer does bequeath to her and brother upon Dorothy Hogan her sets of yellow, red, blue, pink, green (supply any shades omitted) ribbons and her convenient little hand mirror which she tucks in her sleeve. She leaves to Paul Conover, her careful pen! It's a delicate little thing, so can't stand too much!

Dorothy Bennett bestows her love of the simple life and her disdain for anything which borders on the frivolities of society, such as "monkey dinners" and "Devil's balls" to Annie Anderson and Edith Ashworth and Hazel Samerly, who, we feel, will all be staunch pillars of the church.

Earl Denne bequeaths his beautiful pompadour and that voice which won him such fame as "Rosalee" to Donald Finnegan and to Ralph Berry, his unfortunate build of spilling his "Sunday-go-to-meeting suit" when he is innocently seeking a cozy corner for himself and one other. Kate seems pre-judged against "Denne" but let us hope he doesn't fall into a molasses barrel on June 13th.

David Kelley bequeaths his long black stockings to Johnny Bryant, and his overwhelming dignity which would make Lucifer himself grovel in the chest, to Honorable William Marvin.

Mary Quick bestows her spasmodic outbursts of laughter to Barbara Flanagan, providing Barbara will strive to maintain a serious expression at weddings, funerals and other tragic affairs.

Warren Hayford bequeaths his vast and fathomless oceans of knowledge to Charles Parsons, and as a fitting finish to this gift, he leaves him also, his dandified solemn manner and countenance which plainly says "I am Sir Oracle, and when I open my lips let no dog bark."

Louis Dretler bequeaths the eyebrow which he bears upon his upper lip and the ravishing frock which he wore in his recent debut as "Sue" to Frank Jones Massey, and it is our unanimous opinion that both of these additions to Ag's already extensive finery will do much toward setting off his unusual type of beauty to great advantage.

Jane Newton leaves her mania for collecting class pins, fraternity pins and rings, gentlemen's photographs and other amorous trophies to Louise French. Another gift which we are sure Louise will appreciate is Jane's highly developed faculty for finding each little nook and cozy corner where there is room for only two, the heavenly two.

Sherman Wendell, the mahogany monomaniac leaves his speed bag to George Trefethen and his fairy-like feet to Winthrop Burke and we, on our part, advise Winthrop not to invest in bright orange shoes as "Sherb" does, or people will think he is undergoing perpetual initiation.

Alberta Adams bequeaths her ability for looking exceedingly demure and pretty to Doris Kania. A very appropriate gift, say we, since both of these young ladies have been so successful in capturing "blondies."

George Hutchins leaves his roaming disposition with regard to school to Ralph Weston, who attends three educational institutions, Portsmouth High School, Gales College, and International Correspondence School.

Dorothy Alwood bequeaths her dainty mincing steps to Ethel Gillespie and Nellie Fahey with the warning that these young ladies must never don hobble skirts if they are to depend on personal locomotion.

Sarah McWilliams leaves the happy-go-lucky indifference with which she has smiled over this rough and restless sea of education to Ethel Archibald, Nathaniel Hettr and Gertrude Lear, as Sarah has a sufficient quantity to supply them all generously.

Dorothy Donahue leaves her delight in striking weird and fantastic poses, the effect of which is heightened by her alluring glances to Doris Beane, who has demonstrated her natural ability in this line.

Allice Griffin leaves her guard-angel influence which has kept us all from straying down the rosy path to perdition, to Ethel Kenney who has proved herself worthy of the sacred trust.

"Rubb" "Ben" Mugridge leaves his reputation as the "Apollo" of his class and his deep and ardent devotion to a certain symphony to John Harsett, while, laughing sympathetically at anyone who has had to put up with the whims and fancies of these "troughy" "Sophies" he bequeaths to Harold Shaw his vast array of tango shirts as a consolation and comfort to him in his grief.

Constance Locke bestows the measure which she daily burns on the altar of bookkeeping to Ethel Procter and Alice Kelley, hoping that the high priestess who presides over this sanctuary will accept the offering in all good faith.

Helen Davis bequeaths her wild desire to be always in the limelight and her reckless search for notoriety to Pearl Hoff and Elsie Clark. It surprises us that these young ladies have never smashed windows and cloped with chauffers simply to get their pictures in the Portsmouth Herald.

Lemuel Pope leaves his midnight walks around the shore to Rammy Brunkett, who, being of that select and noble few, is entitled to stay at the Y. M. C. A. all night.

James Pullam leaves his knowledge of how to blow out a gas jet to William Billings. Of course William can do this for indeed he has faith enough to remove mountains.

Anna Crowley leaves her strictly Puritan collar to Bertha Ware and Nora Crowley and Beatrice Gardner. In truth, it would appear that all four have renounced the sounding brass and tinkling cymbals of this life.

Kate Green bequeaths her dove of peace to Edith Clough and Caroline Marston. We do not know positively if either of these maidens are addicted to the use of Grape Juice but still we feel they have something in common with our valiant Secretary of State.

Fred Griffin bequeaths to Garland Tucker that nobility of form and feature that majesty of bearing which would make them peers of all tailored dummies and kings of moving picture action.

Nelson Fernald leaves his pensive and preoccupied air to Ralph Berry. That fellow is either in love or else he is "doping out" some great psychological or scientific problem.

Edward Even leaves his fondness for auto rides to Jack Stillaber but adds that he can't quite bring himself to leave Jack the charming young lady whose company he enjoys at such times. We wonder if the time is yet ripe for congratulations.

Florence Mercer leaves that sprinkling of faint but tantalizing freckles and her mysterious smile which makes her altogether adorable to Phyllis Hall and Margaret Kelley. Now girls, it's no use to try buttermilk, peroxide and other facial lotions, because we have tried them ourselves and they peeled all the skin off our nose and made it look like a radish and the freckles are still there.

Arthur Clapp leaves his ability to fiddle the ivory and tease therefrom such strains of fascinating music as would even make Joseph Harvey "tango" to George Snook, but bequeaths his overwhelming modesty in regard to his accomplishments to Edwin Decker.

Teresa Brooks bestows upon Julia Butler and Mildred Carl the overalls which she wears when she climbs trees and plays leapfrog. We don't know that we ever saw a girl so boisterous and noisy as Teresa.

Donald Yeaton leaves to Fred Gibson and John Timmons that modest and unassuming beard which resembles a patch of our New England soil, full of snuggles after our pilgrim fathers had cleared away the forest; primeval.

Arthur de Courcy leaves his slightly foreign accent and clerical tendencies to John Cronin. It seems as if we can see Arthur now, leading his little flock along the paths which lead to Paradise. Blessed are they who have our beloved "ditty" for a spiritual advisor.

Frances Leary bequeaths her energetic and fiercely independent spirit to Marion Bryant and Hazel Kotsch. We often wondered if these "new women" would ever condescend to smile upon mere man, but 10 Pine Street voices the sentiment of the stronger sex when he said "vent! vidi! victi!"

Telen Day leaves her ardent desire to become a "movie" actress to Mary O'Donnell and Katherine Soule. We wonder if it is all for the sake of art, or whether there is some charm in the distant prospect of a stage door Johnnie.

Wilfred Hewitt bequeaths to and bestows upon Charlie Thomas his vast amount of correspondence which is brimming over with such honeyed words as Pyramus must have breathed into the shell pink ear of Thisbe through the hole in the crystal wall. Charles will not need to spend so much on stamps as Wilfred, since he does not patronize U. S. Mail, but conducts his own postal service.

Vivie Merrill leaves her serene composure which a Mexican Revolution, an earthquake and a circus parade could not disturb, to Merle Smythe and Marguerite Kivnan. Certain things, such as dance and prince charming have been known to evoke deep interest on the part of these castlesome beautiful beauties.

Catherine Cronin bequeaths her regal bearing and majestic type of beauty to Irene Booma, Gertrude Call and Frances Parker. If they have any difficulty in holding their heads high enough we advise them to wear their hair in a pigtail and weight it at the end with a heavy flattery by which means we suspect Catherine cultivated her perpendicular nose line.

Teresa Paul leaves that handsome cavalier who became her veritable shadow at our national capital to Beatrice Frye and Caroline Marston, providing they take the Washington trip next year. We predict a royal battle if they both go.

Simon Katz bestows the volume and caprice of his oratory on Winthrop Nay with this little hint as follows: Don't let the pronunciation of a word phase you, Winthrop. Just go ahead and invent your own original pronunciation. It always works.

Rosalee Payne leaves her sweet and sunny disposition which has won her the title of the class sweetheart to Carrie Yeaton and Nellie Craig.

Bertha Chapman leaves her loud and boisterous voice to Richard Bryant and Elsie Clark and we advise the rest of creation to buy an ear trumpet if they wish to be on speaking terms with these charming young ladies.

Ira Levine leaves her deep rooted distrust of all things masculine to Nellie Holmes and Mary Daley. Although all these profess to have taken an oath of hatred against the opposite sex no doubt time will tell another story.

Francis and William Crowley bequeath the soft primrose hue which floods their countenance at the sight of a girl to Philip Long.

Edward Neville leaves his singular moderation in all things to Edwin Decker. It looks as if Edward was trying to consume as little energy as possible so as to hoard it all up for a ripe old age. He is a thrifty lad.

Mabel Ritchford surrenders to anyone who has the mental and physical courage to clean out her desk in Room 4 full claim and title to that possession. When it is at last in a sanitary condition, the faculty will be pleased to inspect it.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our name, the tenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fourteen.

The Class of Nineteen Hundred Fourteen.

We the undersigned to certify and affirm this to be the last will and testament of the class of Nineteen Hundred Fourteen.

Muriel Ritchford,
A. C. Clapp

LOCAL MATTERS BEFORE GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL

At a meeting of the governor and council Friday morning, Representative Guy H. Cutler of Jaffrey was appointed state auditor to succeed Frank A. Musgrove of Hanover, resigned.

Guy H. Cutler is an attorney, and has twice been representative from the town of Jaffrey. He has been prominently identified with the Democratic party in the past two or three campaigns and is one of the state leaders.

Gen. Jason E. Tolles of Nashua was appointed a member of the board of forestry commissioners to succeed himself.

The matter of the Portsmouth Army was under consideration and it was not finally decided on. The lowest bid was $20,000 that of Sacco and Wood of this city and Governor Feltner and the Council are in favor of granting the contract and take the additional $5,000 from the emergency fund, as they consider it good business to have the army built right at the start. To build the head house now and wait for an appropriation from the next legislature to complete, it would cost considerable over what it can be built for at the present time. The Attorney General has given an opinion that the Governor and Council cannot exceed the appropriation, but Governor Feltner and Councilor Badger of this city, do not agree with him and cite the case of the Plymouth Normal School to hear out their contention. The matter will be decided later.

Councilor Badger is trying to straighten out the local state aid for roads (angle). Through some oversight state aid was not applied for on the Lafayette road until May 10, when the law requires it in by May 1st. The state aid for maintenance on existing state roads, such as Sagamore, Maplewood avenue and the Greenland road, has been granted, this includes the oiling and the state pays one half.

AN OLD WOMAN'S REMEDY

Again science comes to the support of old wives' medicine. Everybody who has lived in the country knows that a slice of potato is the thing for a wound, a bite or a bruise, or even that dread malady of the farmer, rheumatism. And now the London Lancet publishes an article advocating from the result of some years' experience, the introduction of the potato juice into medical practice. The author, Dr. Howard of Clapham, squeezes the juice out of raw potatoes by hydraulic pressure, evaporates off a fifth of the water and adds a little glycerine. He finds its application to infamed joints gives prompt relief from pain and rapid absorption of fluid. He also uses it but for gout in the toe. If now any doctor calls it superstitious to follow the good old custom of mashing up a raw potato and binding it on a bee sting or rheumatic limb he may be respectfully referred to the Lancet. Very truly his, himself in a few years will be writing "ext solani bla" on a prescription blank and the druggist will charge a dollar for it. But so far science has afforded no confirmation of the popular belief that carrying a potato in the pocket will cure rheumatism.

GERMS IN POWDERED PUFFS

What the Medical Experts Have to Say About It.

Scientists, by means of microscopes have been able to find germs lurking in almost everything. They found the min food, in the foot of a fly, in plants—everywhere. And now they have found a microbe which nestles in powder puffs.

As a billion microbes can reside comfortably in one cubic centimeter of space, without crowding one another, an ordinary powder puff in a feminine boudoir can accommodate a colony of germs. The combination of ordinary rice powder and a powder puff, in these days a highly popular requisite of the feminine "make-up" box, renders its user liable to infection of the eyes.

At least so says the journal of the American Medical association, and physicians here are inclined to believe it. As it is a new theory, they won't say much about it and the new disease has not yet been given a medical term. It is said to cause irritation and the formation of a secretion in the eyes which makes them red and blurs the vision.

Dr. W. C. Posey says he has noted the new discovery with interest. "I read the statement in the medical journal," he said today, "and am interested in it. Usually articles printed in the journal are reliable. I am not in a position to discuss the matter at any length, except to say that it is interesting from a medical standpoint."

Dr. S. Clifford Boston was amused and interested by the article. "I would not want to have to tell the girls that they shouldn't use any more powder and powder puffs," said he, "for that would make any physician unpopular you know. It isn't well to interfere with feminine ideals. But

The head of one of the greatest steel mills in America walked into a Studebaker store last week and said: "Send me out a Studebaker SIX. Studebakers are the hardest people in the automobile business to satisfy on steels. Judging by their chemical, metallurgical, and physical tests, this must be the best "Six" in the world".

Studebaker

Economical Light-Weight

SIX

One of the reasons why Studebakers are the hardest people in the automobile business to satisfy on steels is this:

In no other way than by heat treatment of steels can the strength of a "SIX" be greatly increased while the weight is being decreased.

In no other way than by the scientific distribution of this weight through intensive manufacturing can that balance be secured which results in the superb roadability of the Studebaker SIX.

And the important thing for you to remember is that the Studebaker SIX stands absolutely alone among light "Sixes" in the application of manufacturing methods without which light-weight, strength, balance and roadability are impossible.

How Studebaker SIX Superiority Shows Itself

The Studebaker SIX will glide silently from a standing start on high into a forty mile gait, in a distance of less than 200 yards.

The Studebaker SIX when it is skimming along at a high rate of speed will actually seem to you from the lack of effort and vibration—to be going at a rate ten miles per hour less.

The Studebaker SIX will stick to a straight line with scarcely a touch on the steering wheel, mile after mile and hour after hour—while other "Sixes" are constantly creeping to one side or the other, and being coaxed back.

The Studebaker SIX will take steeper hills and more of them, SINCLAIR GARAGE, PORTSMOUTH, N. H. A. W. Horton, Proprietor.

on high, than any other "Six" it meets in a day's run.

The Studebaker SIX is not merely motor-silent, but silent all over—the transmission on the rear axle, in addition to its other advantages, contributing to that result.

The Studebaker Proof Book describes and pictures the scientific manufacturing operations of Studebaker. Send for it.

Detroit

The difference between a brand-new manufactured Studebaker SIX and a brand-new assembled or semi-manufactured "Six" is immediately apparent in the superior way in which the Studebaker holds the road. And that difference grows more marked month after month. It culminates tragically, in a second-hand sale of the non-manufactured "Six" at a terrific depreciation.

The Studebaker FOUR is characterized by the same manufacturing excellence and quality of material as the Studebaker SIX.

The Salvation Army.

The world's congress of the Salvation Army, which opened this week in London, will call the attention of the world afresh to the great work that organization is doing. In spite of the fact that this work is going forward in every part of the civilized world there are comparatively few who realize its magnitude.

The great growth of the Salvation Army is indicated by the fact that 5,000 delegates from all parts of the world are expected to attend this congress. They may not all be present at one time, but it is believed that number will attend at some time between the opening and June 20, when the congress will close. The delegates will represent 45 different nationalities and colonies, and 34 different languages will be spoken. Nothing could more perfectly illustrate the fact that the Salvation Army movement is world-wide.

Because of the peculiar methods of this organization, with which most large communities are familiar, there are many who feel that the Salvation Army is an inconsequential affair, but the fact is that it is doing work far beyond the realization of those who do not keep close track of the movements of the times. The peculiar mission of the Army is to seek and raise the fallen who are found in the lower strata of society, and its accomplishment in this direction is greater than is commonly known, especially in the large cities, which afford the best field for the activities of the organization.

And in addition to preaching the gospel in the good, old-fashioned way and carrying it into the highways and byways, the Salvation Army does a vast amount of practical work for the benefit of those who have gone down in the battle of life and need help in obtaining a new foothold. Many will be surprised to know that in this country alone the Army is to expend between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 in the immediate future on land and buildings in the large centers. Schools in domestic science will be established, with industrial homes, rescue halls and homes where the rescued may be cared for until they are able to stand alone and make their way in the world.

Truly this is a great and good work, and one that should shield the Salvation Army from ridicule, from which, however, it suffers much less today than formerly, owing to the fact that its aims, methods and accomplishment are becoming better understood. It has proved its sincerity, and the work it is doing shows that it is not lacking in capacity for big things.

The Travelers' Protective Association wants a new governmental department established, to be known as the department of public works, with its secretary a member of the president's cabinet. The work of the department would be in behalf of a national system of good roads. Good roads in all parts of the country are very desirable and will be built as fast as the people can stand the expense, without the aid of a cabinet official to oversee the job.

What a state of things there is in London when the newspapers agree not to announce the engagements of Mr. Roosevelt when he visits that city, this step being taken as a precaution against disturbances by suffragettes. These women are a disgrace to their nation, and the nation has become the wonder of the world by tolerating their fiendishness as long as it has.

The sea serpent arrives on line, a whopper having been "actually seen" last week off Cape Ann. The captain and crew that saw it testified that it was a monster of dreadful size and appearance and would probably be willing, like a former sea captain, to take those who do not believe the story out and show them where the creature dived.

At a recent denominational conference in an eastern state one of the speakers wished there might be a strike of all the clergy in the state for higher pay, saying he believed such a move would usher in a revival of true religion. But the chances are that it would be more apt to lead to a lot of shut-downs and lock-outs.

Mt. Lodge is the name given to an Alaskan peak 11,000 feet high in honor of Senator Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts. It will be an enduring monument, although the public work of the senator would have been sufficient to perpetuate his name.

The president of Radcliffe college tells women they have as much right to smoke as men, which is true. And then he adds another truth when he says "it is deplorable that they should contract the habit."

A Denver woman is being urged to run for Congress. Is this an outgrowth of the situation in the coal fields of Colorado or of the general uneasiness of the times?

BROTHERS ARE ARRESTED FOR MAINE MURDER

Children Are Blamed for Causing Death of Webb Boy.

Presque Isle, Me., June 12.—Blame for the killing of 11-year-old Hartley Webb, who with Victor Porter was attacked by two strange boys while fishing yesterday afternoon, stripped of part of his clothing and tied with shoe strings, was placed upon Louis Cote, aged 14, and Herbert Cote, aged 9, at the coroner's inquest today.

The boys were arrested at the conclusion of the inquest, which was in session nearly all day, and will be given a preliminary hearing on the charge of murder before a trial justice here tomorrow.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was that the boy was killed by strangulation at the hands of the two brothers by strings tied around his neck.

Victor Porter, aged 13, the other victim who barely escaped strangulation and suffered severely, was the principal witness. He and the Webb boy went fishing early yesterday morning and about 5 o'clock two boys whom they did not know came along and stayed until noon, sharing their lunch with them. All had been friendly up to that time.

Then they went to the different points on the stream, as directed by the other boys, who afterward were alleged to have been identified as the Cote brothers, and who began to be hateful. The Porter boy testified they demanded his and his companion's money. They refused and the Cote boys pulled off their shoes and stockings and other parts of their clothing. Louis Cote took a Boy Scout's knife from the witness' pocket and threatened to stab him, he testified.

The feet and hands of both boys were tied and they were pushed into the brook, he said. They crawled out and the witness was kicked in the face, causing his nose to bleed. He told the jury that Louis Cote said: "You will be dead worse than that before I get through with you."

He said the Webb boy tried to walk and fell parallel with the edge of the water. When found by Parker Jacques, an uncle, the body was under water and the face above it.

The Porter boy said he fell asleep or became unconscious and when he awoke the other boys had gone. He was trying to reach the home of George Parsons when his plight was discovered by the two children gathering greens, who cut the string from his neck. His face was swollen so badly that he had to hold up his eyelids with his fingers in order to see anything.

The medical examiner and physician who performed the autopsy, testified death was due to strangulation.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Assistant Postmasters.

Assistant postmasters who are now protected by the civil service have been saved once from attack by the Democratic spoilsmen, but their tenure of office will not be secure until the present administration ends. The Postmaster General now leads the onslaught to take these places out of the classified service long enough to give the Democrats a chance to fill them. The Moon bill, which has for its purpose the fixing of the compensation of railroad carriers, contains a paragraph that requires all assistant postmasters to take a civil service examination within ninety days. This examination has no relation to railroad pay for transporting the mails and is dragged in as a rider to enlarge the field of spoils for the Democratic party. Furthermore the Moon bill itself is

CURRENT OPINION

Wiseest Course in Mexico Would Be to Blockade All Ports.

The best expert estimate of the force required by us to garrison the necessary towns, suppress guerrilla warfare and transpire Mexico is four hundred thousand men, and it is said that this would take two or three years and involve an expenditure of one million dollars a day.

The wisest course for us to pursue, if the day is before us of suppressing anarchy in Mexico, would be to blockade all the Mexican ports because the military weakness of the country is not in lack of hardy men, but in lack of military supplies and in lack of food provision.

If we could be content to take the seaports and blockade the country while we were making reasonable preparation for the task, then when ready for action we could do the work at the least cost of life and time and money. But the public might grow impatient with this counsel of prudence. We would probably have to act quickly and possibly meet some painful mishaps due to lack of preparation.

The suppression of guerrilla bands would be drawn out. Disease in that country would thin our ranks more than bullets. Then, after having lost thousands of lives and expended a treasure double that which it has cost us to give to the world the Panama Canal, we would have on our hands a hostile Mexican people, without any gratitude for our sacrifices.—By Former President William H. Taft.

An eleventh hour substitute for a scientific measure that had been prepared by a special commission to adjust the contention of the Post office department and the railroads in regard to the compensation to be given the latter.

For more than a year this commission made up of Democrats and Republicans serving without pay has been at work on the subject and had reached a unanimous conclusion. Just as their bill was about to be introduced in Congress, Postmaster General Burleson has Congressman Moon present the substitute with its rider to open the places of assistant postmasters to office seekers. This action came as a surprise to both the Democratic and Republican members of the commission. It is regarded by them as a political trick, but being dubbed an administration measure the members are closed under penalty of the displeasure of the White House.

Probably no partisan act of the administration will rouse more public indignation than this second attempt to displace assistant postmasters. How much the public is indebted to these faithful officials for the speedy and correct handling of the mail, will not be known until incompetents are put in their places. Many of them have been years of service, having grown up with the postoffice business. Is anyone so blind as to think that such an examination as this administration will provide, or in fact any examination, would disclose more competent men to fill these positions? Have we not had the force of examinations for fourth class postmasters with the later appointment of men recommended by Democratic Congressmen? Now it is proposed to enlarge the comedy by subjecting assistant postmasters to examination.

The looking of their origin service by Bryan to reward his friends, the removal of federal officials before the expiration of their terms, has occasioned little criticism except when the interests of the country have suffered. It was known that the Democrats were hungry and that precedent would be disregarded. But as a matter of self-protection it was supposed that the Democratic party would not attempt a raid on places like those of assistant postmasters where the convenience of every citizen is at stake. There is hardly a community with an assistant postmaster, where an almost unanimous protest to his removal could not be obtained. The storm of criticism raised by the first attempt of the administration to raid these places should have been sufficient notice of popular feeling. Evidently the administration is riding for a fall.—Nashua Telegraph.

TALKS ON THRIFT

Why Girls Should Learn to Save

"The young woman who knows from experience just how money is earned and how it may be judiciously expended and profitably invested is far on the way to a high plane of living." Prof. W. A. McKeever.

Three billion dollars is the estimated amount spent annually for the upkeep of the ten million or more homes in the United States.

Most of this money is expended by women and girls.

Does this not show the great importance of training young women in the value and use of money?

Some time ago a prominent household magazine asked 500 bachelors why they did not marry and settle down. Most of these men replied that the average marriageable nowadays is too expensive a luxury. Many asserted that the young women of today are money squanders rather than the material out of which thrifty neoprene are made.

"Why can't we have bills? Then we could put all of the people off," argued a bride of a few months with her young husband a professional man, striving to make his way on the income of $1,500 a year. She was the product of a first rate boarding school, and the child of a family high in social position. But she was utterly uneducated in the morals of handling money.

The word morals is used advisedly because a true view of economic life requires that every expenditure be regarded as an act that involves a moral question for an unnecessary and unwise expenditure is a misuse of the power of money.

The girl of today participates very little in household work and she does practically nothing to reduce expenditures.

Whose fault is it? Very little of the blame can be put upon the girl herself. Her parents must shoulder it, and they in turn will say that the times are responsible.

But there are signs that people are becoming more sensible. Perhaps the unexploited halting of business activity at present has something to do with it. At any rate the organization of the Parents League among rich people in New York is significant.

"We hope to make it fashionable to be sensible and unfashionable to be foolish," Mrs. John Hayes Hammond said in outlining the plans of the organization which has been formed for the purpose of uniting parents and teachers in establishing wholesome, common sense standards for the education, amusement and home life of children.

Parents of working girls, also cannot escape responsibility. Suppose your daughter is employed in an office or factory at fair wages. She will be proud to be able to pay her share of the cost of living at home. If you will supervise her spending you will find that she can dress as well as the neighbor girls of the right type out of what is left after paying her share at home. If she starts to work at sixteen years you will find that in two years' time she cannot only be entirely self-supporting but can put aside in the bank a small sum every week. If fathers would all do their duty every bright working girl whose parents have met with no pecuniary misfortune may have $500 in the bank by the time she reaches her 21st birthday.

That will be a splendid thing for her whether she marries then or continues her employment.

Girls and boys who learn lessons of thrift do not forget when they become men and women. Heedful employment for young people is a moral protection, to say nothing of the capacity it creates for successful business with the problems of adult life.

Would it not be wholesome for the nation if there were more admirers for the savers and less for the spenders?

"SAFETY FIRST"

This is the modern cry many legislative bodies are taking up and writing into law. "Safety first" is the rule of the wise shopper who takes nothing for granted. First of all she reads the advertisements in The Herald, weighing the claim side by side and then deciding for herself which fit her needs. She knows she is going to the store of a reliable merchant before she starts out. And satisfaction usually attends her shopping.

INVISIBLE AEROPLANE

German Invents One With Wings of Transparent Celluloid

A German engineer named Knobell, living at Munster has invented a more or less visible aeroplane, which is considered in military circles to be of considerable value for war purposes.

Instead of having the ordinary cloth fabric or other visible material used for the wings, this particular aeroplane is constructed of a transparent variety of celluloid which is likewise stated to be fireproof.

The wings thus made let the light through, so that a height of 3000 feet it is almost impossible to detect the aeroplane at all. The machine is also fitted with a silent motor.

A further advantage is that the aviator has an unobstructed view in all directions.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Boston and Maine has arranged to run special trains to Manchester on Monday from Berlin, Concord, Claremont, two from Concord, Keene, Peterboro, two from Nashua, Boston, Lawrence, Portsmouth and Dover. One of the extras from Concord as well as from Nashua will be run to accommodate the National Guard organizations and will be for the exclusive use of the soldiery. Added sections to regular trains will be run whenever needed to accommodate the rush.

Conductor Gleason of Concord is consulting on the Portsmouth and Concord passenger run in place of Conductor Cross.

The initial suit filed in this state against the Boston and Maine, because of its defaulted notes was won by the plaintiff yesterday when a jury returned to Judge McLaughlin in the superior court a $50,000 verdict in favor of Robert Windrop and Company of New York who sued the road on account of unpaid notes of that amount comprising part of its issue which matured in February. Interest on the notes to date at 6 per cent is also allowed.

Satisfaction of this judgment will dissolve attachments filed against a long list of railroad and steamship lines, mills and banks with which Boston and Maine does business.

Orders have gone from general offices of all big roads traversing the grain belt to rush car repairs. It is estimated that within two months approximately 1,000,000 cars will be employed in moving grain.

The East Boston Marginal Freight Railroad Co., financed by the East Boston Company will be unable to construct its railroad within the time originally provided in its charter, and has petitioned the public service commission for an extension of time. The plans of the road are opposed by the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn.

RESOLUTE HAS MORE SUCCESS

Defeats Vanitie Cup Race Yacht Under Adverse Condition.

Sandy Hook N. J., June 12. The cup defense yacht Resolute today added another victory to her string of successes over Vanitie by winning a race under conditions which in the light of previous contests, were supposed to favor her rival.

The course was a thirty mile triangle ten miles to a leg. The wind was fresh at the start and moderating to light at the finish. Two thirds of the course was broad off the wind.

Resolute led from the start and won by two minutes forty-seven seconds elapsed time, and by six minutes in the corrected time. Vanitie after being left over four minutes in the rear in the ten mile beat to the first mark, gained 23 seconds on the punch at the second mark and 57 minutes on the reaching leg to the finish. In three of the six previous races Vanitie showed marked superiority in reaching runs. But today she seemed sluggish. The race closed the Sandy Hook series for the cup yacht with three straight wins for Resolute.

Though all the contests have been fairly fought the best of feeling has prevailed between the two crews and just after the finish today Vanitie's white jacked tars lined the rails of the breeze yacht and cheered the Resolute. The foremost hands on the winner gave her a lusty cheer. Resolute left an anchor for Bristol, R. I., by way of Mattituck for minor alterations. Vanitie went to City Island for repairs.

No sharper contest for the windward berth at the start has been seen off Sandy Hook than the struggle between the boats today. For nearly ten minutes the yachts followed one another around a fifty yard circle just under the stern of the committee boat each skipper waiting for the time to run out and make a dash for the line.

Ira Thomas, former star catcher of the Athletics, and now chief of staff Thomas has been reported to be a of Connie Mack's board of strategy, is very shrewd ball player, with a great knowledge of thinking out on field plays, according to report and will become man

At one time Vanitie had the Resolute under her lee and apparently well boxed. Her helmsman however, wheeled on by cool, calculating work and the greater speed of the Resolute in stays. Becoming desperate on the last leg, Captain Dennis landed on his tail-board, but it was too late.

Vanitie gained about a minute but she was half a mile astern when the Resolute reached the lightship and the nobly finish. In the last hour of the race the breeze lightened considerably and the two yachts were standing all out straight when they crossed the line.

The next race for the cup yacht will be on June 23 in Long Island Sound under the auspices of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. It is expected that the Delaware third of the cup race will be in fine shape for the contest.

Carranza Barred From the Mediation President Still Optimistic

Tampico, Mex., June 11 (via London, Tex., June 12).—The steamship Amalia from New York today discharged her cargo of ammunition for the Constitutionalists.

Sixteen hundred cases of ammunition and two aeroplanes were immediately dispatched north on a special train.

WILL NOT NOW ADMIT THEM

Mediators Announce This of Carranza Delegates—Insist on Armistice First

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 12. The mediators will not officially admit to the conference here the three representatives when Gen. Carranza has announced he will send to Niagara Falls. The South American diplomats said they would not recede from their original condition, demanding an armistice.

The dispatch from Sanluis stating that the Carranza note made no mention of the conditions under which he was sending delegates was shown to the mediators. They declined to make formal comment, but let it be known that their attitude had undergone no change. They reiterated that admission of the Constitutionalists is and will continue to be contingent upon declaration of an armistice.

The mediators would have no objection if a conference could be held between the Huerta delegates, the Carranza delegation and the Americans. In fact, such a suggestion has been under consideration for some time, on that, if an agreement could be reached between these three parties at Niagara, the mediators would finally admit all to the signing of a protocol.

May be Heard Informally.

It is considered possible that the Carranza delegates might be informally received here and their argument be heard why an armistice cannot be declared, but on this point there has been no crystallization of sentiment, and the influence of the American delegates to obtain at least a hearing for the Constitutionalists, when they come may be brought to bear on the situation.

The Huerta delegates read the dispatch from Sanluis with evident interest. Senior Hadasa spokesman for them, said the question of admission to the conference was a matter for decision of the mediators. The American delegates looked upon the announcement from Sanluis as a distinct and encouraging sign. It is not an unlikely that they will try to persuade the mediators not to close the door of the Constitutionalists delegates.

On the other hand, the need for Constitutional representation, in the view of one of the mediators, is daily diminishing. He said the mediators from the outset, had taken the interests of the Constitutionalists fully into consideration.

"VERY ENCOURAGING"

Washington, June 12. President Wilson today authorized the announcement that he considers the progress of mediation at Niagara Falls as "very encouraging." No further statement was made of the basis of the President's optimism. It was said immediately that he expects mediation to have a successful outcome within the next few days.

ADVERTISING SELLER—FARM PRODUCE

GEORGE H. DACY

A Wisconsin farmer agent $1.25 for 100 printed postcards. He used these cards to advertise the fact that he offered seed corn for sale. As a result of this simple and inexpensive method of advertising he sold $800 worth of seed within a year. A roadside bulletin board on which he affixed notices indicative of the farm produce which he had to sell was instrumental in increasing an Illinois farmer's bank account $1,000. A simple "ad" run in several issues of a city newspaper enabled a Missouri farmer to lay the foundation for a poultry plant that today is paying $5,000 profit a year.

It pays to advertise, Mr. Farmer. Appreciate your opportunity for placing your wares before the public through the medium of the daily or weekly press, the billboard, the poster, the circular letter, the catalogue or through exhibits at fairs and shows. It will profit every farmer (and market's cash crops) the they grains, grasses or live stock) to maintain an accurate mailing list containing the names and addresses of possible purchasers who reside in his vicinity. This mailing list should be the basis of his personal advertising. At regular intervals he can inform his patrons what he has to sell and what price he wants for it.

Try a Bulletin Board.

Who would ever hear of Bill Jones' auction sale if Bill had not had huge placards printed and distributed broad cast announcing that he was selling out? Who is going to know that you have some fine bear pigs or some gilts or some superior seed grain for sale unless you get busy and advertise the fact? Month to month and house to house publicity is perhaps all right in its place, but usually it is too slow in effecting sales. What the average farmer who has something to sell should do is to ascertain the names and addresses of possible purchasers. Then he should keep plugging away at them until he makes a sale.

A simple bulletin board either enclosed in a glass front case or open could profitably adorn the front gate post of every farmer who has anything to sell. It will catch the eye and notice of every passerby. Where it is kept up to date it will accomplish many sales during the twelve months of the year. Classified and display "ads" in the local newspapers and in agricultural journals also aid the farmers in marketing their cash crops. The efficiency of the parcel post as an aid in marketing farm produce has been demonstrated to sell and does not place at present for the farmer who "knows how to locate a purchaser."

A CHAMPION FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD CORN GROWER

W. B. MERCIER

To Walker Lee Dunson, a fourteen-year-old country lad, belongs the international record of corn production. Walker is the champion boy corn grower of Alabama, having produced 222.7 bushels on one acre at the cost of 19.9 cents per bushel.

The following letter from the lad tells how he raised this splendid crop: "I am just fourteen years old and was born in Tallapoosa county, Ala., on the 4th day of December, 1899. I have lived on the farm all my life, and I have only had school advantages to the extent of attending the common school only during the idle seasons from the farm work and for this reason my education is limited."

In preparing my land for the corn I first cut the stalks with a stalk cutter and turned the land on the 1st of March with a two horse plow from ten to twelve inches deep. I then double cut the land with a disk harrow, and on the 7th of April I laid off the rows three feet apart and bedded the land with a one horse turner and planted the corn in the water furrow, using 250 pounds of 10.4 guano. The corn came up to be a perfect stand.

Keeping the Cultivator Going

The first plowing I used a cultivator deep enough to loose the soil. The second plowing I used a single stock with scutcher and scrape and applied 400 pounds of 10.4 guano. The third cultivation I used a harrow and applied 600 pounds of 10.4 guano. I then thinned out the corn to a stand of about eight inches in the drill. The fourth cultivation I again used the harrow and applied 800 pounds of 10.4 guano, also giving it a good hoeing. The fifth cultivation I harrowed again and applied 200 pounds of 10.4 guano, a top dressing. The sixth plowing I harrowed and applied 100 pounds of nitrate of soda. The seventh plowing I used a Planter Junior cultivator very lightly.

The cost of this one acre of corn will be found as follows: Preparing the land $1.89
Plowing the corn 1.00
Hoeing the corn 1.00
Work of horses 2.40
Gathering the corn 8.00
Rent of land 5.00
Fertilizers 28.70
Seed corn50

Total cost of labor and fertilizing 46.50
232.7 bushels of corn at 20 cents a bushel 46.54

Net balance $162.64

THE ANNUAL CLEANING UP OF THE INCUBATORS

E. O. MORTON

About the middle of June the hatching season is almost over, so the time has come for cleaning up the incubators. Unfortunately it is frequently a great temptation to put off this work until winter, when it always seems as though there would be more leisure. But this is a great mistake and the result invariably the same—dirty, germ filled incubators and this just when they are the most needed.

A tried and experienced poultryman has, of course, his own particular methods at such a time, but the novice, on the other hand, is often puzzled to know just how and with what to start in. The following suggestions, then, will be found helpful for those who have neglected their "incubator season." First take out the trays, brush them thoroughly and wash them with hot water, to which has been added a tablespoonful of some good disinfectant to a gallon of water. The washing over set the trays in the sun for an airing and to dry. Disconnect the lamps and give them and the flues a good cleaning, and when wiping out the lamp due a milk bottle brush will prove an excellent cleaner. Brush out the bottom of the incubator and go over it with warm water and the disinfectant as specified above.

Varnish the Old Machines

If the machine has been in use for several seasons it should be wiped off with a damp cloth and the top, sides and legs given a fresh coat of varnish; also, if it happens to be of the hot water type, empty out all the water, filling it full again with fresh clean water, and leave it until needed for use again when it should, of course, be refilled again, but do not leave it next winter where the water may freeze in it.

All this may seem to the beginner to be a vast amount of unnecessary labor, but it is always well to remember the fact that it is possible a number of the little chicks may have been born with the germ of some disease, and therefore it is only by using the greatest of precautionary measures and the most thorough methods of cleanliness that one may be quite sure of having destroyed all the germ life to which fowls are so often subject. Indeed, it will be found that the most successful poultrymen, and the ones who carry off the blue ribbons at the shows are invariably those who leave no stone unturned to keep everything to do with their poultry houses and yards, etc., up to date and in the most immaculate condition, and surely these are the men whose example must be followed if success is looked for.

June, in spite of its early days, is unfortunately also an ideal month for insects of all kinds, these little creatures reveling in the warm weather and the bright sun, and unless we are continually on the lookout for them they very soon get the upper hand of us. A Beetle Trap

In planting melons and squash one must always keep a sharp outlook for melon and squash bugs, which may either be picked off the vines or traps set by planting a number of extra squashes between the ones that are to remain and then cover the leaves with parls green and lime, although the old fashioned way of covering the young squashes, melons and cucumbers with a frame covered with fine mosquito netting is perhaps as good as any to protect the vines.

Be sure also to dust the young winter cabbage plants at night with pyrethrum powder mixed with flower-one pound of the former to five pounds of the latter—which discourages the moths that lay their eggs there. After the strawberry bed has done fruiting, if it is to be kept over another year, go over it with a mowing machine or scythe, gather up the leaves and burn when dry; then plow a furrow or two on either side of the matted row, leaving a strip four feet wide; fill the furrows with stable manure and harrow them well. The new leaves will soon start again, and the bed will be nearly as good as ever. In the tomato bed watch for tomato worms, which are a great nuisance, and perhaps the best plan to get rid of them is to go over the vines by hand and pick them off.

Doan's Regulets are recommended by many who say they operate easily without griping and without after effects. 25c at all drug stores.

HAVE TROUBLE GETTING MARRIED

Baltimore, Md., June 12. The refusal at the eleventh hour of the Rev. Dr. Robert P. Kerr of the Northampton Presbyterian Church to officiate at the wedding of Mrs. Alice Gerry Stewart to Mr. Frank Bayless Griswold of New York, caused consternation among the assembled wedding guests, the bride-elect being quite dismayed at the unexpected block to the ceremony.

The wedding was set for 5:30 p. m. last night and at 8 o'clock Dr. Kerr telephoned that he could not officiate. Upon his return from Princeton he said, he had received many protests from his parishioners against his officiating at the marriage of a divorced woman and he felt he must heed their protests.

Then followed a busy time telephoning to various Presbyterian ministers, all of whom refused until finally Rev. A. W. Price of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant acceded to the appeal and was rushed in a taxi-cab to Mrs. Stewart's home where the delayed ceremony was finally performed at 10 o'clock.

The bride is a daughter of Edward T. Gerry.
